Diva Carmen

Ceddy J: Why do you feel people should support you as a model?

Diva Carmen: I feel people should support me as a model because of my wild personality. I'm dedicated to my work, and my look. When it comes down to my shoots I always try to tell a story in each look. Being a girl from Brooklyn I want people to see my life through my pictures and creativity.

Ceddy J: What would you say is the most valuable information you have learned as a model?

Diva Carmen: I've learned as a model you can't trust everyone and everyone will not understand your visions. Some people think because you're a model that you will just settle for anything or is willing to do certain things you're not comfortable doing just to get further in your career.

Ceddy J: What is something people underestimate about often with modeling and everyday life?

Diva Carmen: Sometimes people underestimate how challenging it is to stand out and be unique in your own way, especially with so much competition nowadays. Some people don't realize how difficult it is to get that perfect pose or how frustrating it is not to be compared to another individual. Everyday I brainstorm and try to come up with ideas that fit me and my image and show how creative I am and what I'm willing to do to get that look.

Ceddy J: If any of fans could hang out with you for a day, what is the most typical turn up experience they could have?

Diva Carmen: There is so many things a fan would experience in a day with me. I'm just a ball of energy. I'm loud, outgoing, funny, love to dance, have a great time and I never hold back. I enjoy making people laugh and I just love to create memories with people so they will never forget a great time with me.

Ceddy J: What would be a cause you would give back to if you could start your own foundation?

Diva Carmen: One thing I love more than modeling is animals, so I would definitely give back to the ASPCA which fights for animal rights and provides food and homes for rescued animals. Since the age of 4 I always pictured myself opening up my own animal shelter and saving thousands of animals lives because they don't have a voice and can't speak up for themselves.

Ceddy J: What events and projects do you have coming up for the next few months?

Diva Carmen: Right now I have a few hosting events and photoshoots I am planning. Being that I am also a mixologist I plan on working at more places and expanding and meeting more people.

Tika White

Ceddy J: Why do you feel people should support you as a model?

Tika White: MY LOOK IS DIFFERENT and my sexy is different.

Ceddy J: What would you say is the most valuable information you have learned as a model?

Tika White: Look out for yourself, do your research, and you can do anything you want just put your mind to it. Don't get discouraged.

Ceddy J: What is something people underestimate about often with modeling and everyday life?

Tika White: The industry underestimates models period because they're FEMALES.

Ceddy J: If any of fans could hang out with you for a day, what is the most typical turn up experience they could have?

Tika White: Dinner, then Roof Top Party.

Ceddy J: What would be a cause you would give back to if you could start your own foundation?

Tika White: I will start a AIDS Foundation for Kids who don't have family or need help.

Ceddy J: What events and projects do you have coming up for the next few months?

Tika White: Right now I'm working on a web series called SI Live, I'll be SHOOTING with ace jour for a up coming MAGAZINE, and a few others. Really focusing on ACTING now.

Ceddy J: If any of fans could hang out with you for a day, what is the most typical turn up experience they could have?

Vanity Redz: If a fan hung out with me we would turn up the DC way. I love the outdoors so we would probably hit a cookout or a pool party. I'm all about a nice venue with good positive vibes.

Ceddy J: What would be a cause you would give back to if you could start your own foundation?

Vanity Redz: My grandmother passed away at a young age with sarcadosis and foundation will support research towards a cure.

Ceddy J: What would you say is the most valuable information you have learned as a model?

Dressy J: As a model the most valuable information I've learned as a model is to keep your heads up, don't believe everything people promise you and to always have a plan B just in case.

Ceddy J: What is something people underestimate about often with modeling and everyday life?

Dressy J: Some people always underestimate my hustle, they always think I won't make it.

Ceddy J: If any of fans could hang out with you for a day, what is the most typical turn up experience they could have?

Dressy J: They'll have a stress free day with some good laughs and some drinks lol.

Ceddy J: What would be a cause you would give back to if you could start your own foundation?

Dressy J: I would definitely build an orphanage for the kids in the streets back home in Haiti.

Ceddy J: What events and projects do you have coming up for the next few months?

Dressy J: I definitely have a couple shoots coming up for more magazines and a couple video shoots on the way.

Mizz Brooklyn Blue

Ceddy J: Why do you feel people should support you as a model?

Mizz Brooklyn Blue: I'm a well versed model, that brings a classy seduction to the game, I take this same classy-sexy style to my swimwear collection, Accidental Creations NYC Beach and Swimwear.

Ceddy J: What would you say is the most valuable information you have learned as a model?

Mizz Brooklyn Blue: As a model I learned that your not a fit for everyone, as a petite model, you have to be a chameleon, and put your stamp on everything you touch so that you can be remembered in some way. Your work is your calling card, and being driven, dependable and humble makes you a threat in this industry.

Ceddy J: What is something people underestimate about often with modeling and everyday life?

Mizz Brooklyn Blue: People underestimate that this "life" is easy but its work, to look for jobs in hopes to be picked for a role. A model nowadays can be an actor/actress, singer, brand ambassador, and so on, you have to be multifaceted. Being a model is a platform to get your face out there so that you can move to the next level of marketing yourself.

Mizz Brooklyn Blue

Ceddy J: If any of fans could hang out with you for a day, what is the most typical turn up experience they could have?

Mizz Brooklyn Blue: The experience that anyone can get from me is that I'm humble and rugged. Yes, I am a model, but I am a mother, and a union carpenter that build houses, I am a true tomboy.

Ceddy J: What would be a cause you would give back to if you could start your own foundation?

Mizz Brooklyn Blue: Anything that deals with displaced families that had to flee their homes because of natural circumstances, such as terrible weather and unexpected fires. While working in the Build it Back NYC program, which dealt with homes of Hurricane Sandy victims, it felt great to be apart of a program that helped put the lives of so many back together.

Ceddy J: What events and projects do you have coming up for the next few months?

Mizz Brooklyn Blue: As of right now, I'm working a me swimline for fashion week for Feburary an all men's line, so I'm very excited about that.

Tee Malinaaaa

Ceddy J: Why do you feel people should support you as a model?

Tee Malinaaaa: I feel like people should support me as a model because I'm hardworking and passionate about modeling.

Ceddy J: What would you say is the most valuable information you have learned as a model?

Tee Malinaaaa: You can't work with every model and every photographer because a photoshoot can either make you or break you.

Ceddy J: What is something people underestimate about often with modeling and everyday life?

Tee Malinaaaa: How much work, time, and dedication you have to put into modeling. Just because you are modeling doesn't mean your life has to stop.

Ceddy J: If any of fans could hang out with you for a day, what is the most typical turn up experience they could have?

Tee Malinaaaa: Go out to eat, have drinks, and hit a club.

Ceddy J: What would be a cause you would give back to if you could start your own foundation?

Tee Malinaaaa: Kids with Autism

Ceddy J: What events and projects do you have coming up for the next few months?

Tee Malinaaaa: Photoshoots, modeling practices, and a fashion show that brings awareness to the deaf and hearing impaired.

Robbyn

Ceddy J: Why do you feel people should support you as a model?

Robbyn: I think people should support me because I know I have a lot to offer. Not only do I model but I also sing and act. I believe that I'll be bringing a lot to the table, so they're support will not be in vain.

Ceddy J: What would you say is the most valuable information you have learned as a model?

Robbyn: Well for one I've learned that modeling isn't as easy as it looks. It takes a lot of work, practice and dedication. This shows me that no matter what you decide to do in life... in order to master it you have to work hard... nothing comes easy. I have also learned that no matter what you do, people will always have something to say. They will either love and support you or hate you and try to put you down. At the end of the day you have to do what makes you happy and shut out all the negative energy that tries to stop your progress.

Ceddy J: What is something people underestimate about often with modeling and everyday life?

Robbyn: How hard you have to work every single day. Whether it is modelling or anything else you do, the only way you're going to master what you do is if you work hard every single day to make sure you get better and better... if you put in basic work you'll see basic results. You'll never actually see your full potential unless you give anything you do your all.

Ceddy J: If any of fans could hang out with you for a day, what is the most typical turn up experience they could have?

Robbyn: Well the most typical turn up experience would just be whatever that day brings. I'm very unpredictable so it's hard to say what or where exactly it would be, but no matter where I am I always enjoy myself and make sure whoever is around me also does. Some people would say I'm a crazy girl and I agree... But they would definitely enjoy my craziness.

Ceddy J: What would be a cause you would give back to if you could start your own foundation?

Robbyn: I would give back to education in the arts. I would help fund talented students who can't afford to fund their art education.

Ceddy J: What events and projects do you have coming up for the next few months?

Robbyn: I'll be doing a video shoot for my latest single "under the covers". I'm also about to start working on an EP which I hope to release at the end of March. You can find out the events and other projects on my Instagram page @robbynofficial.

Misx Saturah

Ceddy J: Why do you feel people should support you as a model?

Misx Saturah: Modeling is an art and a skill that most people can't do. It takes talent and focus to consistently provide my fans with what that want to see that's why I feel my fans should support me as a model.

Ceddy J: What would you say is the most valuable information you have learned as a model?

Misx Saturah: Models have to stay professional at all times because at any point due to our attitude or how we go about dealing with certain situations can destroy our reputation and career as a model. The last most valuable thing I learned as a model is to always keep your portfolio update cause that's how u make your money and how other photographers and companies discover you as a model.

Ceddy J: What is something people underestimate about often with modeling and everyday life?

Misx Saturah: I think people underestimate that modeling can be used as an art platform to express who you are really and your point of view on things happening around the world.

Ceddy J: If any of fans could hang out with you for a day, what is the most typical turn up experience they could have?

Misx Saturah: If a fan and I were to hang out for one day we would go to the spa, do some shopping and go to brunch. And party at a hookah lounge.

Ceddy J: What would be a cause you would give back to if you could start your own foundation?

Misx Saturah: Cancer Awareness and Mental Health and Retardation Children.

Ceddy J: What events and projects do you have coming up for the next few months?

Misx Saturah: A feature in Dream Angel Magazine and Black Lotus Magazine and dropping a poster soon.
